CIGARETTE PAPERS.

By JOSEPH HATTON.

"A Good Man Gone Wrong."

"Who are all those men lounging around, outside the Capitol?" asked the young person contemplating the Parliament House of America. They are the senators of the United States, my dear," said paterfamilias, "Are there any more senators besides them?" "Only one," said Pater. "Where is he?" asked the young parson. "He is inside making a speech." It was not a crowded House, when, the other night, Mr. Labouchere, representing the few malcontents and misguided men who are known as the Little Englanders, made his speech in the Little Englanders, made his speech in Englanders, made his speech in Englanders, made his speech in the base month of the story. At the same time it was easy to see that the heart and soul of the assembly were absent. Mr. Labouchere at times was, indeed, entirely alone. Now and then he may have struck a sympathetic note: otherwise, for all practical purposes, the senators were flustening to the hon. member for Northampton. There are few cleverer men than Mr. Labouchere, in some things I believe he is perfectly in earnest; in many ways he is a generous critic; and his paper has rendered the public valuable service, but he treats international politics as an intellectual game, a mental blind man's buff, a medium for cynical epigrams against patriotism.

RAISING TURENOUS BEGONTAS.

The tendency now in using begonias in beds or masses is to group them in colours and to have plants of similar habit, height, &c. This means, of course, unless one is prepared to spend money freely, several years given up to raising secolings and selecting the best and propagating the property of the selecting the best and propagating the second property of the selecting the part of the second property of the selecting the part of the second property of the selecting the selecting the selecting the second property is now fooded with tuberous begunias of the inferior types. Seedlings are so easily raised, and where there is a little room in the hot-bed seeds sown now and grown on rapidly will be ready to plant out early in June, and will be coming into bloom in July. These begonia seedlings will possess a certain decorative value, but will not, of course, be equal to good estections of previous years. Regulias may be raised now in a sunny window in a well-fraishear of seedlings raised.

The dinner of the London County Cycling and Athletic Club is fixed for the Hotel Metropole on March 28, when a large company is expected to be present, and certain announcements of a somewhat startling character as to the prospects of the club are likely to be made.

Twas down the Epsom road on Saturday last, and the number of lady cyclists quite astonished me, especially as the roads were in anything but good going order. In all directions the fair wheelwomen were to be noted, and all of them seemed to be enjoying themselves very much indeed, whilst the way 2 at least of them climbed a hill under my be observation showed that they were expert riders and not merely playing at cycling. A On all hands I hear the same tale, and I venture to predict that when the sport has been taken up in so thorough a manner by the fair sex it will certainly not be dropped by them—if only because of its peculiar convenience as a means of locomotion.

a reception, of which the best that can be HALLS AND PALACES. IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT, said is that it was decidedly mixed.

Amongst the most recent arrivals at the Empire is Mille. Juniori, the engaging French "chanteuse," by no massa a stranger to London. Her new songs are eminently characteristic, and of the three "Ohi Maman" is perhaps the most successful, but "Trois Rue du Pan" and "Les Etudiants" are also good, and each is delivered with piquancy of style and no little vocal ability. The Welsh giveningers (guite a different style!) are also included in a liberal entertainment, and of course the wonderful cinematograph continues a great draw. policy be English or not. That being so, what England has to do at the present moment is to go on—regardless of the criticisms of those foreign Powers which are ever seeking to hinder her in the fulfilment of her mission of civilisation in Egypt. There is, we regret to say, a great deal too much anniety at the Foreign Office, and throughout the country, about foreign criticism. British statesmanship is much too studious not to wound the susceptibilities of Powers which, on their side, never hesitate to flout British feelings and to trample upon British interests whenever they get the chance to do so. Seeing, then, that we get no thanks, of our too delicate respect for the feelings of others we should do better to shape our own course regardless of what they may think, and to remember that unselfish deference to others, though a most excellent virtue in private life, is sheer imbecility when displayed in the conduct of interna-EXEST MEDICAL JOURNAL: "A true 'Peptone' of Meat well made and of good quality."

THE ADVANCE ON THE NILE.

no matter whether the moving spirit of its policy be English or not. That being 40, what England has to do at the present

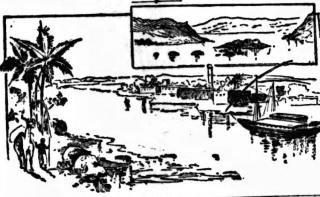

Every intelligent spectator of events in Egypt has long been aware that at any moment an Anglo-Egyptian force might have to be pushed forward from the Egyptian frontier at Wady Halfa to repress a threat-ened incursion of the wild tribeamen of the Soudan. That the Dervishes have assumed Soudan. That the Dervisies neve and the threatening attitude has been known to the Egyptian Government for months past; and the recent disaster to the Italian army at the Italian army at the Italian army at the Italian army at the Italian attention of the Italian army at the Italian attention of the recent disaster to the Italian army at Adowa has embodened the followers of the Khalifa and Osman Digma, not only to advance against the southern frontier of Egypt, but also to attempt to wreat Kassala from the Italians. Clearly, then, the time has come for a forward movement in the direction of Dongola, the precise limit to which must be determined by the course of events which it is, obviously, impossible to forece with exastness at the present time. The primary reason for the advance un the Nile primary reason for the advance up the Nile is purely military; the apparently offansive movement of the Angle-Egyptian forces is in reality purely defensive, being intended to check the threatened advance of the Boudansee. But, behind the immediate pressure of military considerations from the point of view of the security of Egypt itsalf, there are other reasons which contribute to render the advance of the roops imperatively necessary. In the first place, it is hoped that the advance of the appeditionary force will effect a diversion in favour of the Italian garrison in Kassala. Were that important place to fall into the hands of the Dervishes, the injury thereby inflicted would not be confined to Italian interests alone. The fanatical followers of Osman Digma regard all Europeans jury thereby inflicted would not be confined to Italian interests alone. The fanatical followers of Coman Digma regard all Europeans as qually hostile to the faith of Islam, and a victory over the Italians would encourage them to endeavour to drive the other infidels—the English—out of Egypt. But, over and above the temporary situation created by the menacing attitude of the Soudanese, the reported gathering of their warriors, and the encouragement they have received from the Italian reverse, there remains, as a permanent and unchangeable factor in the determination of the policy of the Egyptian Government, the danger of allowing the upper portion of the Nile to remain under the control of a powerful combination of hostile tribes. The situation of Egypt in this respect is absolutely unique. Egypt depende, wholly and solely, for the fertilisation of its soil upon the rising of the Nile. If the great river failed to rise, the Egyptian possant would stave. Hitherto the barbarous tribesmen of the Soudan have not developed aufficient engineering skill to tamper with the waters of the Upper Nile. But how would it be if their ignorance were enlightened by European—say French or Russian—engineers? At any time, Egypt might find itself reduced to material ruin at the will of the Soudannese. The repression of the tribesmen and, ultimately, the re-conquest of the Soudan must, therefore, be ever present to the mind of the Government at Cairo, no matter whether the moving spirit of its policy be English or not. Another man spoke to him, and he ran after the cart, and gave the prisoner in charge to P.C. 33E E.—The prisoner was a native of Montreal in Canada. For a year, he said, he had worked as a said; he had worked from Buenos Ayres to France, and, being left destitute in Paris, was sent over to England by the British consul. He had only been in London 9 days, and his account of this transaction was that a man came up to him and asked him if he wanted to earn some money. He eagerly accepted, and the sam told him to drive the cart in question to Blackfirst Bridge, to which he directed him, and for this job he was to receive some coppers.—

That was at 6 p.m. on Friday. At 8 p.m. he went to count his meat, and found 2 pieces gone. He was holding a piece of candle, and prisoner came upon the scene and said, "Shall I hold the candle?" He said, "No, get out of it," and continued his search, noticing that prisoner watched him through a hole in an out-house. Looking in a trap in the yard he found a handkerchief containing the 2 pieces of pork produced with his pieces of paper stuck on, and he saked prisoner it it was his handkerchief. He said nothing, but tried to get over the gate. He caught hold of his leg, and held it till a constable of the state of the said of the said and he asked for mercy, saying, long time."—Remarked.

contact Before Mr. Justice Striting.—In Court.—At Thomas Peters said be was working with a gain of 5 men, including deceased, between Balham and Wandsworth Common Stations, on the down local line. A train was seen approaching, and the gain steeped on to the embankment. Deceased, instead of so doing, stepped across on to the up level line, upon which a train was also approaching. Upon seeing this, he apparently became confused, and in attempting to retrace his steps was struck by the buffer of the engine attached to the down local train and knocked into the four-foot way. When picked up he was quite dead.—Dr. Lowndess stated that deceased had received a fearful blow on the left side of the head, which was completely shattered. Death was instantaneous.—Accidental death.

Mr. Drew held an inquest on Mark Roberts 46, water, Oxford-street, Chelsea.—Mary Van Carpels, widow, Hasker-street, said she lived with deceased for 10 years, and during that to the found doseased with his hands to his tops of the continued of weelings of the series of the continued of the landing outsetly wollon.
